

ANDRÉ LOURENS

Economist, Minerals Council South Africa

André is a resource economist with a strong background and expertise in mining and macroeconomics. He holds an MCom in Economics (cum laude) from the University of Pretoria.

At the Minerals Council, André provides vital insights into areas such as critical minerals, electricity supply, logistics, and mining input costs, amongst others. He spearheads the annual Facts and Figures publications, the go-to reference for an overview of the mining sector. André plays a key role in analysing data to inform the Minerals Council, its members, and stakeholders about the sector's performance, supporting efforts to drive growth and sustainability in mining.
